The Gender Equity Index (GEI) measures the economic participation and political empowerment of women in 136 countries globally. It computes the gaps in income and employment levels and in literacy; it also measures gaps in enrolment at all levels and in literacy. The score indicates the gap in women’s education status and their participation in the labour force. The Gender Empowerment Index (GEI) ranges from 0 (no equality) to 100 (perfect equality) and computes the gaps in income and employment levels and in literacy; it also measures gaps in enrolment at all levels and in literacy. The score indicates the gap in women’s education status and their participation in the labour force. The Gender Empowerment Index (GEI) ranges from 0 (no equality) to 100 (perfect equality).

Country description of the GEI measures the economic participation and political empowerment of women in 136 countries globally. It computes the gaps in income and employment levels and in literacy; it also measures gaps in enrolment at all levels and in literacy. The score indicates the gap in women’s education status and their participation in the labour force. The Gender Empowerment Index (GEI) ranges from 0 (no equality) to 100 (perfect equality).