Accountability of People's representatives

Democracy has been defined as a governing system of the people for the people and by the people. It is thought that the elected representatives of the people right from the Grampanchayat level to the parliament carry out procedure to provide legal shape to the people's issues. The laws enacted for the welfare of the citizens of the country, nation at large and also the world at a larger scale is later formed as rules and regulations for implementation. If these laws enacted by the Legislation assembly and according to the constitutional provisions are violated the judiciary system steps in to take action on its face this democratic system in the country is ideal but the political parties leave no table unturned to exploit and misuse this system and it seems as if autocracy/monarchy is the rule of the land.

No doubt, we in an attempt to raise aware citizens have lessons an democratic systems included in the school text books at primary education level and also at the secondary education level but the education system being examination-oriented these lessons are carried no further than text-book material. The further citizens of the nation fail to grasp and carry the lessons to their adulthood. Consequently, educated adult citizens too have little knowledge or awareness regarding the role of Panchayat, legislative assembly and parliament in a democratic regime. It is necessary that citizen has awareness regarding how the democratic system works. Giving votes at the time of the elections is not the only duty of an aware citizen. A citizen also needs to be aware that not only the elected representative but a common citizen also can influence the procedure of the legislative assembly/parliament.

Even if the state/nation is on a path of remarkable progress, it is necessary to have discussion and deliberations on all the people-related issues (be they beneficial for the state or otherwise) in the legislative assembly/parliament. It becomes duty of MLAs to fulfill the purpose of their having been elected and sent to legislative assembly/parliament and it is the duty of the citizens to see to it that their elected representatives fulfill their expectations.

Does the legislative assembly/parliament fulfill the purpose for which it has been formed? This needs to be examined. Do the elected representatives know or have been trained to understand and participated in legislative assembly/parliament procedure? How many MLAs and ministers have participated or at least have remained present at the Legislative assembly /parliamentary sessions? These issues need to be verified. One needs to verify if the in-house majority of the ruling party members have not been manipulated to act as effectiveness also needs to be examined.

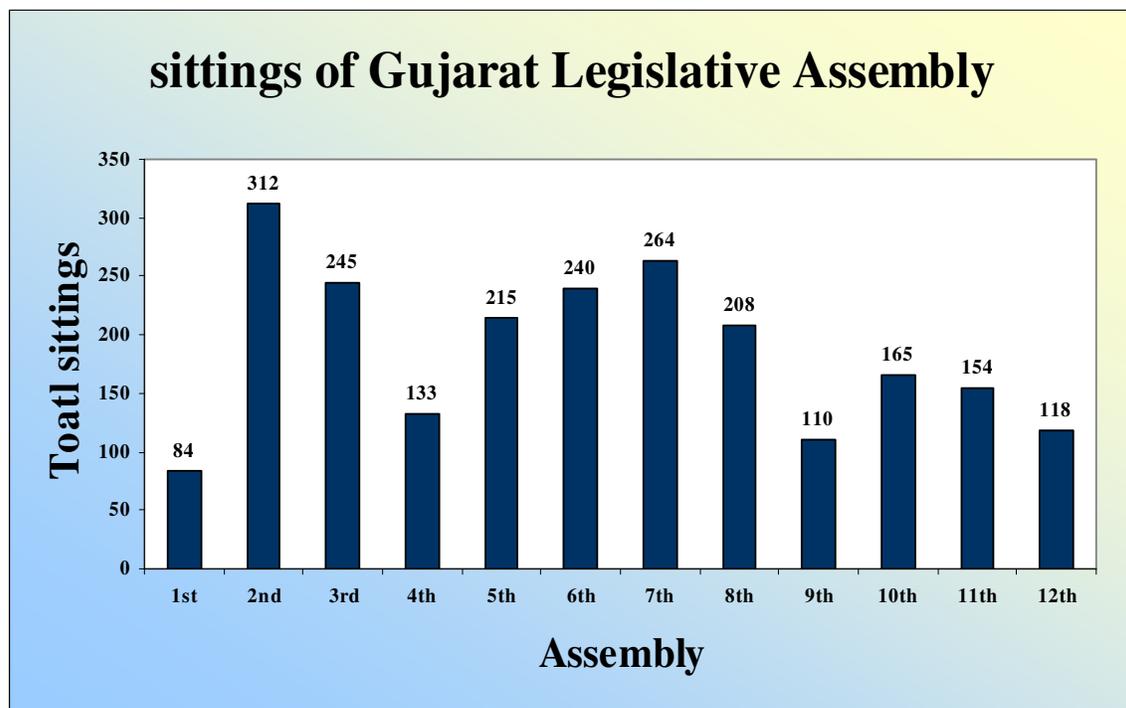

Legislative assembly is an efficient platform to discuss the people's issues and take decision regarding that. This study makes an attempt to examine the transparency and efficiency of the legislative assembly procedure, participation of MLAs and other related issues. This study shall be an attempt to generate awareness among people with a view to make the democracy truly people oriented. We wish to present before people the study of last year's budget session so that people become third party capable to act as watch dogs of the Legislative assembly activities and elected representatives and make the elected representative answerable to the people.

Gujarat Legislative Assembly

- The State of Gujarat was formed by bifurcating the Greater Bombay State into Gujarat and Maharashtra on 1st May 1960 by an Act of Parliament called the Bombay Reorganisation Act, 1960. When the State of Gujarat came into being on 1 May 1960, the number of members in the First Gujarat Legislative Assembly was 132.
- Thus the initial strength of the Assembly was 132. It was further increased to 154 in 1962, 168 in 1967 and 182 in 1975 with the gradual increase in the population and territorial revision of the Constituencies of the State. However, since 1975 the increase in the strength of the legislature has been stayed by constitutional amendments till 2025.
- Out of the present 182 territorial constituencies, 13 constituencies are reserved for Scheduled Castes and 26 constituencies for Scheduled Tribes.
- The Gujarat Legislature is unicameral.
- Presently, the Twelfth Legislative Assembly consists of 182 members. The term of the Assembly is five years unless dissolved sooner.
- There are 19 permanent Committees in the Assembly.

Questions in the Legislative Assembly

Generally the first hour of every sitting of the House is the question hour. This is the most interesting period of all the procedure of the House. During this hour, members, through questions and supplementary questions try to get information from the Government and to activate the Government machinery. With the help of the questions the day to day delays, omissions and corrupt practices prevailing in the vast administration are pointed out to the Ministers, to the Legislative Assembly and to the public and thus, the goals of removing the laxity of the Government machinery, correcting the omissions, getting the undone work done and getting justice are accomplished.

Questions are of three types:

- (1) Starred Questions.
- (2) Unstarred Questions. and
- (3) Short notice questions.

Starred Question

The question on which the Minister gives oral answer and supplementary questions can be asked in respect thereof is called starred question. A member in the Legislative Assembly can ask not more than three starred questions in a day to the Minister. Generally in the Gujarat Legislative Assembly, not more than five minutes are allowed for supplementary questions on any starred question. Generally, in the Gujarat Legislative Assembly supplementary questions are not allowed for more than five minutes for each starred question.

Unstarred Questions

A question, the answer of which is presented before the House in written form only is called an unstarred question. No supplementary questions can be asked on such questions. There is neither any time limit for asking an unstarred question nor there is any ceiling on the number of unstarred questions to be asked by a member. Whether the House is in session or not, any member can give the notice of an unstarred question on any working day of the year. A printed list of such questions and their answers is Laid on the Table of the House and copies thereof are circulated to the Members when the House is in session.

Short Notice Questions

The time limit prescribed for giving the notice of a starred question is of 21 days. If a member does not have enough time left to give such a notice and desires to have an immediate reply to a question of an urgent nature and if the Minister concerned agrees to give reply to the short notice question, the member is allowed to ask the short notice question in the House on the time of a starred question. Such a question is called “a short notice question” and it is taken up on the prescribed day before the question hour begins.

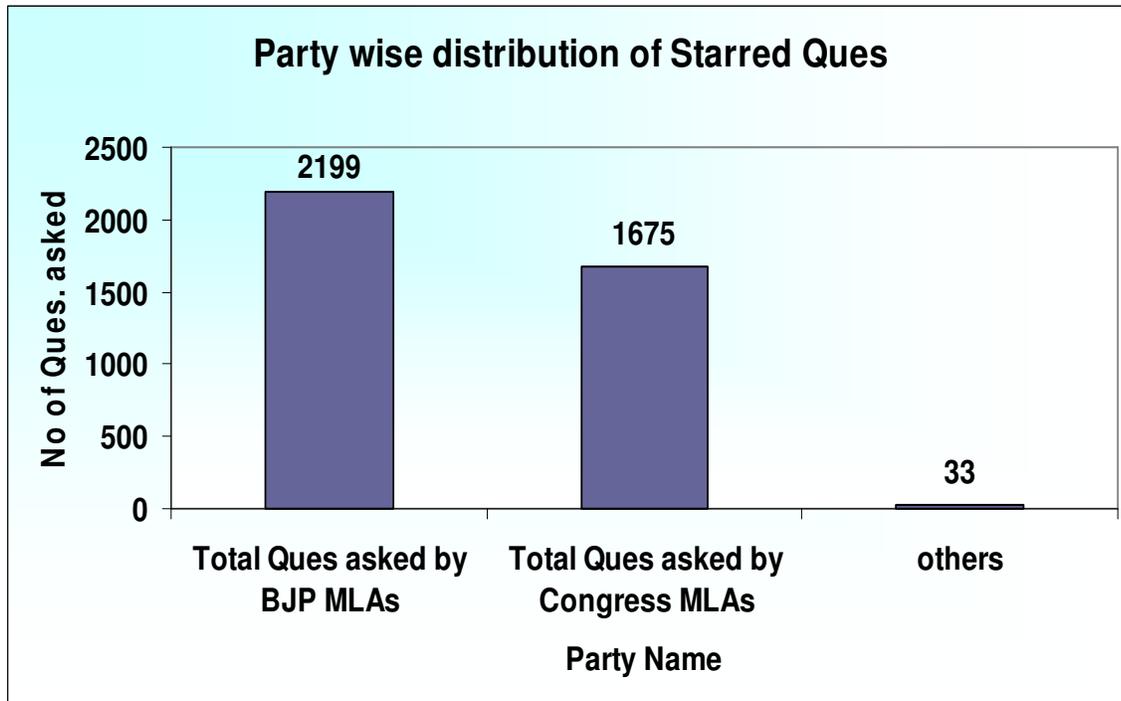

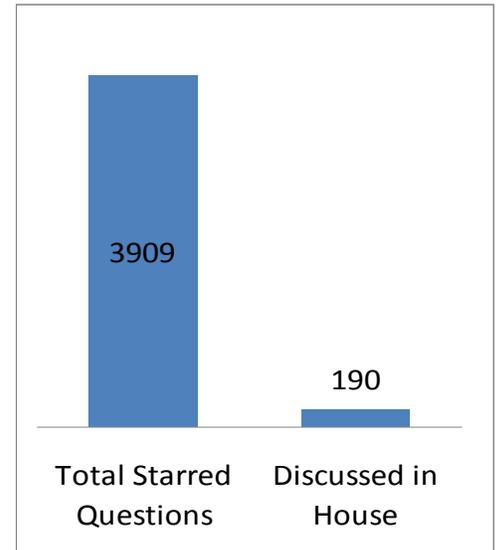

Half an Hour Discussion

If a member is not satisfied with the reply of the question he has asked in the House, he can give a notice of a Half an Hour Discussion on a matter of sufficient public importance arising out of the reply of that question. After the Speaker gives the approval, the discussion is held on a prescribed day after the routine business of the House is over. In a week two day are allotted for such a discussion. For such kind of discussion, no motion is moved or no voting takes place at the end of the discussion.
